Title	PL	AI-Fueled Disinformation Site Exploits Polish Elections for Ad Revenue	13/05/2025

Summary

- Since May 2, the website topsportnews[.]co[.]uk has published 26 false, AI-generated articles about the Polish presidential elections, spreading disinformation such as fake candidate suspensions or election date changes. These articles were shared - often anonymously or via a suspicious Nigerian-linked Facebook account - in small groups supporting presidential candidates, likely to drive traffic and ad revenue, with the site connected to an Italian ad company and run by individuals linked to Nigeria.
- Whilst the campaign as a whole is missing a single consistent narrative due to the pursuit of clickbait titles the overarching theme focuses on the instability and endangerment of the Polish elections.
- The election specific content has reached 24.1K people after amplification via Facebook groups.
- The website aims to generate ad revenue by creating localised content targeting Polish elections, as well as developing inauthentic news articles with the use of clickbait to drive traffic.
- It would be advisable to monitor and take down accounts that amplify topsportnews[.]co[.]uk articles on X and Facebook.

Incident

On May 2 the website topsportnews[.]co[.]uk started to post articles related to Polish presidential elections. The articles covered a range of topics with false information about candidates, like the candidate being suspended, murdered, the date of elections moved, etc. So far, the website published 26 false articles about Polish elections. The text is probably generated by AI.

The false news was published on several small Facebook groups dedicated to two presidential candidates (1, 2, 3). Most of the shares occurred from the anonymous account, but in several instances the articles were shared by the Facebook account 'Mhiz Pinky', which was created in February 2023 and shares features of being a sock-puppet. The location of the account is indicated as Nigeria.

The part of the articles related to the elections was published by the 'admin' account. Reversing the Gravatar data, the profile image and the username 'abije12' was discovered. The picture shares features of being 'taken' possibly in West Africa (Ghana or Nigeria), however the picture was labelled as AI-generated by the MEVER AI-detection tool with the parameter MeVer RINE [ProGAN] v1.0 as 'very strong evidence'.

Links to the website on LinkedIn seem to point to the Nigerian profile describing himself as the 'blogger at topsportnews[.]co[.]uk'. Other profiles of the same person confirm the location (4, 5, 6).

The website is using an extensive ads providers codes list in the 'ads.txt' file (reselling over 950 codes). The managing entity of the ads is the Italian ads revenue company hbagency[.]it. The primary goal of the administrator of the website seems to be financial and getting revenue from the Internet users visiting clickbait articles posted on Facebook groups.

Narrative

Meta narrative: the campaign seems to lack an overarching Meta-narrative, with most of the posts seeking sensationalist clickbait.

Sub-narratives: Endangerment and instability of Polish elections.

Impact

Reach: Given the articles are spread via Facebook, election specific articles have reached a total of 24.1K users via membership of Facebook groups.

Key Objectives and Behaviours (DISARM Red Framework)

Objective: T0137.001: Generate Ad Revenue – The website has been noted to host a plethora of ads, albeit without a coherent network. The Ads manager has been discovered as hbagency[.]it.

T0101: Create Localised Content – The website has been known to localise and target their articles, including thematic targeting and language specificities, i.e. articles with false information around the Polish elections, written in Polish without previous engagement in this topic prior to 2nd May 2025.

T0085.003: Develop Inauthentic News Articles – the news articles are spreading false information regarding the election and the candidates. Examples include disinformation on the change of dates for the election and shooting

of an unspecified presidential candidate.

T0016: Create Clickbait – The news articles tend to create attention grabbing headlines to drive traffic to the website, with vague content of the articles missing detailed information on the reported event.

T0086.002: Develop AI-Generated Images and T0085.001: Develop AI-Generated Text – the image used by the admin of the website is AI generated, likely to create a front for the operation. The text used in the articles is also AI generated.

Recommendations and Actions Taken

Recommendations: it would be advised to monitor and take down Facebook accounts amplifying posts from topsportnews[.]co[.]uk.
